Trouble Delays They Work for New Dimes March

Astronaut's World Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —United States' plans to send astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., three times around the earth were postponed a second time today, probably until next Saturday.

Reliable sources reported additional days were needed to completely check out faulty oxygen system in the environmental control system. This system, which feeds oxygen to the astronaut's pressurized space suit, developed problem during a checkout early today.

The discovery of the trouble prompted officials to call an immediate 24-hour delay of the shot, pushing it off from Wednesday until Thursday. Later, the sources reported, it was decided to make a complete check to insure all is right for Glenn's safety.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has not announced a definite date for the firing, and therefore declined comment on the report.

The trouble developed in a hard-to-get-at spot in the capsule and the entire control panel had to be removed so technicians could correct it.

This is the fourth postponement of the launching. It originally was set for Dec. 20 when officials felt there was a chance to achieve manned orbital flight in 1961. When this was deemed impossible, the shot was put off until Jan. 16.

Problems with the Atlas booster resulted in another week delay, and minor capsule difficulty pushed the launching back still another day.

News of the postponement came as astronaut Glenn, like a superbly conditioned boxer closing out his training camp, began final preparations for the flight. He was scheduled to make one more simulated orbital flight in a ground-based capsule and then go into a tapering off period. The final preflight days mostly will be taken up with medical checks, a final briefing, running on the beach to stay in shape and, inexorably, waiting.

Mrs. Impson said about $135 was pledged over the Telerama by Hempstead citizens and emphasized no one person would benefit more than another. The money, from all sources, goes to benefit everyone, she said.

Public Asked to Mail in Envelopes

"Check your inside coat pocket and desk pigeonholes to make sure you haven't overlooked your 1962 New March of Dimes contribution envelope," Mrs. Lura Impson urged today.

This is a reminder that your contributions are vitally needed to help The National Foundation fight birth defects, arthritis and polio," she said. "Many have already returned their mail donations but there are others who have forgotten."

"In birth defects and arthritis particularly we have stepped up our patient aid program tremendously in the past year," she added. "As time goes on more special treatment centers and evaluation clinics and more clinical study centers will be financed by the March of Dimes in more and more communities. In these treatment centers and clinics we are bringing expert medical care and diagnostic services to the community level. At the same time our clinical and laboratory research work is moving forward in the search for clues to the cause of these baffling diseases with the ultimate hope of preventing them."

Negro Held for Hit-Run Death Here

Leon Booker, about 40, Negro, was hit and killed by an auto late last night at Washington. The driver failed to stop.

Sheriff Jimmie Griffin said today that Eddie Muldrow, 35, Hope Negro, was being held for the hit-run killing. He said formal charges would be filed probably sometime today.

Sheriff Griffin said the incident occurred just north of Washington on Highway 4. He said the body was knocked or drug about 100 feet.

Muldrow was arrested this morning at Electronics Entertainment center where he worked. Griffin said the right side of Muldrow's auto was damaged. The sheriff said Muldrow admitted hitting someone and that he panicked and didn't stop. The sheriff said tracks showed the car did run onto the shoulder of the road at impact.

High Court Rules Against Prisoner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled 54 today a federal prisoner may not challenge his sentence on the ground he was not asked before sentencing if he had anything to say in his own behalf.

Justice Stewart delivered the majority opinion. Justice Black wrote a dissent in which Chief Justice Warren and Justices Douglas and Brennan joined.

The court decided on appeal by James Francis Hill, who was sentenced June 4, 1954, in federal court in Knoxville, Tenn. Hill was given a 20 year sentence on conviction of transporting a kidnapped person and an additional 3 years for transportation of a stolen automobile.

In 1959, Hill sought to have his sentence set aside claiming that he had been denied an opportunity to make a statement to the sentencing court and denied the right to present any information in mitigation of punishment.

Stewart's majority opinion said a rule of procedure by which the defendant is to be given such an opportunity was not of itself an error that could be raised in attacking the sentence in habeas corpus proceeding.

Most of the high court's business of the day was minor in nature.

DAYTONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Lloyd V. Berkner of Dallas, internationally known geophysicist and a member of the late Admiral Richard E. Byrd's first arctic expedition in 1928-30, will deliver the mid-year commencement address to 740 graduating seniors Jan. 27 at the University of Arkansas.

Kennedy Says U. S. Met Its Recovery Aims

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy reported today the nation met its recovery aims in 1961, is making "another giant stride" toward full employment this year, and can attain a "staggering" $600-billion worth of production in 1963.

The time to erect a defense-in-depth against future recessions is this prospering moment, Kennedy told Congress in his economic report. It was the third and last of the major White House messages to the new session.

The antislump weapons needed, he said, are his twin plans—scurried by most Republican Congress members—for standby presidential powers to cut taxes temporarily and unleash federal money for quick-acting public works.

Kennedy urged Congress to let him trigger up to $2 billion of lending, spending and matching funds into the works plan when joblessness reaches danger points which he defined.

He also spelled out for the first time how much tax-cutting leeway he wants—enough, he said, to throw $5 billion of new buying power into a faltering economy in six months, or, if extended with Congress' assent, $10 billion in a year.

The cuts he proposed would be up to 5 percentage points in each income tax rate bracket. That would mean a one-fourth tax reduction for the lowest taxpayer group, but considerably less, in proportion, for the higher-income families.

Further, Mr. Kennedy said, this Congress should:

Empower him to "negotiate a reduction in the tariff of the European Common Market" with a gradual lowering of U.S. duties.

Lengthen jobless benefits permanently and enroll three million new workers under unemployment insurance.

Enact promptly the pending 8 per cent investment credit for industry.

He also called for repeal of the Silver Purchase Act, aid to education at all levels, health care for the aged under Social Security, job training for idle youths and job retraining for out-of-work adults.

The President pledged that this recovery will not be nipped off prematurely—as he said that of 1959 was—by a tight-money policy.

The outlook for stable living costs is favorable, he assured Congress, if unions and industry will show statesmanlike restraint in pay settlements or avoid a spiral of wage and price advance.

The President said the country has achieved the immediate aims he set a year ago—to "recover not from one but from two recessions"—by starting the economy uphill and reducing joblessness while keeping price stability. "Confidence in the dollar has been restored," he said.

This year national output should rise about $50 billion above the $221 billion of 1961, he predicted, adding: "This would be another giant stride toward a fully employed economy."

Kennedy disclosed he would have asked a tax increase to cover the steep rise in spending necessitated by last spring's Berlin crisis if he economy had been in better shape.

For the first time since the Truman administration, the annual economic message specified goals which, in the President's opinion, would accomplish the intent of the Employment Act of 1946. That law committed the government to policies which would maintain "maximum employment, production and purchasing power."

Public Invited to GOP Meet

The Hempstead County Republican Committee will hold its first meeting of the new year Tuesday, Jan. 23 at 7 p. m. at the city hall courtroom. Regardless of your present political affiliation, you are invited to take part.

Revenue Dept Bond Issue Is Upheld

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court upheld today a 1961 act authorizing a $1.6 million revenue bond issue to finance construction of a Revenue Department Building on the capitol grounds.

The unanimous opinion affirmed Pulaski Chancery Court's finding that the appropriation law, Act 38, was constitutional in all respects.

The Supreme Court ruled that a proposed state bond issue does not require voter approval unless it pledges the full faith and credit of the state, which Act 38 does not.

Money to repay the bonds will be raised from a 50 cent increase in the auto title registration fee and a $5 fee to be charged for recording mineral leases.

In other opinions today, the Supreme Court:

Upheld White Circuit Court's award of $2,500 damages to Mrs. Mary Dodd, a Searcy housewife, because Olan Mills, Inc., a photo studio, used her picture in advertising without her permission.

Reversed a five year prison sentence and ordered a new trial for Floyd Skaggs, who was convicted in Pulaski Circuit Court of molesting an 11 year old girl in North Little Rock on May 26, 1960.

The Supreme Court said the trial judge erred when he instructed the jury that it could convict Skaggs on testimony of the prosecuting witness alone.

Affirmed a Sevier Chancery Court decree awarding custody of the two children of Richard H. Dunn and Velma Jo Dunn Bounds

25 Persons Meet Death by Violence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Twenty-five persons died violently in Arkansas in the week ended at midnight Sunday, 11 of them in fires. A fire near Morrilton Monday claimed the lives of all 10 members of the Andrew Paladino family.

Four Negroes died in a fire at Pine Bluff and two persons died in a fire at Warren.

Only one traffic death was recorded last week despite hazardous driving conditions due to foul weather. Four persons died in shootings, one in a fight and one from exposure.

The body of Hallie Smith, 67, Negro of Brinkley, was found Sunday near U.S. Highway 79 about 12 miles south of Brinkley. A coroner's ruling said death was due to exposure. He had been missing since Monday.

Kenneth Tucker, 38, Negro, of Crossland, was killed in a fight Saturday at his home when struck on the head with an iron pipe, a police said. Columbus McCree, 37, Continued on Page Two

State Warned to Brace for Severe Weather Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas braced today for a new cold wave that pushed into the northwest section Sunday night, bringing an abrupt end to an unseasonably warm day.

The sudden weather change has spawned heavy thundershowers in most areas. Water ran over several highways in the Little Rock area, but none was closed.

Minimum temperatures Sunday night ranged from 19 degrees at Fayetteville and Harrison, where the cold wave already was being felt, to a warmish 63 at El Dorado.

The Weather Bureau said, however, that Sunday night's minimums in most cases would be today's maximums as temperatures dropped steadily across the state.

Low predicted for tonight range from 5 degrees in the northwest to 20 in the extreme south.

Roads are expected to glaze over. Some glazing already is reported in the northwest, where light snow was recorded at Fayetteville and Harrison in mid-morning.

A low pressure system brought a strong south wind into the state late Sunday and temperatures in some cities rose rapidly — by as much as 20 degrees in some places.

Thunderstorms followed with heavier rain being reported across the central section of the state, where 7 a. m. measurements ranged between one and two inches.

The rain was lighter in the north and still lighter in the south east.

Little Rock measured 1.52 inches, Texarkana 1.18, Walnut Ridge 1.21, Fort Smith 1.03, Fayetteville .76, Harrison .74, Memphis .41 and El Dorado only .04 in the 24-hour period up to 7 a. m.

Water rose over Highway 67 in southwest Little Rock, but traffic was routed over service roads beside the four-lane pavement.

Ex-President of Dominican Asks to Leave

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Ex-President Joaquin Balaguer has taken refuge with the papal nuncio and asked the new Dominican governing council for permission to follow other leaders of the Trujillo regime into exile.

A spokesman at the national palace said the request for safe conduct had not been acted on.

President Rafael Bonnelly said Friday that Balaguer and Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echevarria, deposed armed forces chief, would be "submitted to justice" if investigation showed they had a part in last week's abortive attempt to replace the ruling council with a military-controlled junta.

Bonnelly said Saturday, however, that Balaguer was free to go wherever he chose.

Balaguer, one of the last holdovers from the dictatorship of late Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo, was the first president of the Council of State set up Jan. 1 by the head with an iron pipe, a police said. Columbus McCree, 37, Continued on Page Two

Inter-American Ministers Open Parley on Cuba

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — Western Hemisphere foreign ministers ceremonially open their conference on Cuban communism today and then shift into informal private sessions to discuss family dispute imperiling inter-American unity.

The word for the conference sponsored by the Organization of American States was not yet "gloomy," but there was fear the meeting would founder in hickering over how or whether to punish Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

The conference agreed to delay their first plenary session until Tuesday to afford more time for backstage bargaining. The delay was regarded by some here as evidence of some nation's reluctance to take a strong line against the Cuban regime.

The U.S. delegation chief, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, declared in a public statement that there was a need for "security from extracontinental intervention" if the ambitious $20-billion Alliance for Progress program is to get on the road. This was implicit warning that the alliance needs freedom from Castro-Communist pressures if it is going to bring to fruition hopes for an economic upsurge to counter the yeasty extremist ferment in Latin America.

Rep. Armistead Selden, Alabama Democrat and chairman of the House Inter-American Affairs Committee told newsmen that unless the foreign ministers take strong action against Cuba that "things could be disagreeable in Congress" when the Alliance for Progress appropriation comes up.

Other authoritative U.S. sources said there probably would be a big cut by Congress in the $3 billion Kennedy earmarked for the program because of the alarm over Cuba among U.S. voters.

The Central American nations continued to insist they are ready to walk out of the conference if it avoids punishment for Castro.

The OAS foreign ministers have several possible actions to choose from.

First they must decide whether Cuban communism is a threat to "the peace and political independence" of the Americas. If so, they must decide what they will do about it.

They can by a two thirds vote collectively break off diplomatic relations with Cuba, or impose economic sanctions, or both. His would require affirmative votes by 14 of the 21 nations. Thirteen, including the United States, already have broken relations with Cuba, and could be counted on to back collective action.

Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Ecuador, Mexico and Uruguay still maintain diplomatic ties with Cuba. One of these seven will have to be won over or the move for sanctions will fail.

Bagwell Infant Dies Sunday

Rural Community Improvement Judging teams will go into action next week on the judges for the Southwest Arkansas District includes Mrs. Lowell Harris of Hope . . . judging started in the district on Jan. 15 and will continue to Jan. 27.

The Mobile X-Ray unit will be in Hope Jan. 23 from 11 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. at the Courthouse, according to Mrs. Inez Turner.

Disagree on Stabilization Act Affects

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Officials on opposite sides of the lawsuit attacking constitutionality of state revenue control and appropriation laws disagree on the effect the case might have on Arkansas finances.

D. D. Panich, the attorney who filed the suit in Pulaski Chancery Court last week, said he did not agree with Gov. Orval E. Faubus' statement that chaos would result if the Revenue Stabilization Act is ruled unconstitutional.

"I think the legislature would have to get us out of the so-called chaos with the governor in the driver's seat," Panich said. He filed the suit for James J. Hooker of Little Rock.

W. J. Smith, legal adviser to Faubus, said if the Revenue Stabilization Act is nullified,
"There will be millions of dollars to be made out of discounting state warrants."

For example, he said, a state agency might have $750,000 appropriated but unavailable in the state treasury, and might pay its employees in warrants. Banks would cash the warrants at 80 or 90 cents on the dollar and hold them until the money became available in the treasury, then cash them in for full value.

Smith was one of the men who drew up the Revenue Stabilization Act in 1945. He called the Stabilization Act the state's main safeguard against deficit spending and said the financial operation of the state would be disrupted if it is held invalid.

The suit contends that the five state laws violate constitutional restrictions against grouping unrelated appropriations and delegating legislative authority to the executive branch of the government. The other laws are three 1961 appropriation measures and an accounting procedures law which facilitates the Stabilization Act.

The Stabilization Act provides a means of channeling funds equally to various state agencies, rather than on a first come, first served basis, Smith said.

Smith said a ruling against the act would mean a constitutional convention, because the law then would have to be written into the constitution in order for the state's business to operate effectively.

Pulaski Rep. Sterling Cockrell said Saturday the act might be added to the constitution in the form of an amendment.

Garland Rep. Ray Smith and Ouachita Rep. E. L. Mosley said every budget bill passed by the 1961 legislature would have to be revamped if the act is held unconstitutional.

A special session would have to do that, Mosley said. "And a lot of departments would have to take appropriation cuts."

Pulaski Rep. J. H. Cotrell, who filed a suit resulting in nullification of the governor's Omnibus Appropriations Act last summer, said the Stabilization Act may have some good features. "But just because it is good does not make it constitutional," he said.

"We levy taxes for the schools, for instance," Cotrell said, "and they are spent for a dozen other purposes under the Stabilization Act."

State Sen. Roy Milum of Harrison said the act is not an appropriation measure and would not be subject to attack on the same grounds as was the Omnibus Act. It was invalidated because it made more than one appropriation in one bill.

Washington Rep. Charles Stewart said the legislature might have to spend two months re-budgeting.

The governor says the whole thing is a plot to harass his administration.

No date has been set for a hearing on the suit in Chancery Court.

AND IT'S IMPORTANT TO YOU!

Look at the construction of a Flameless Electric water heater — see the two heating elements? They are immersed in the water, and the moment you start using hot water, current flows through the element and is transferred directly to the water. Automatic thermostats control the action of the elements, the upper one maintaining 150° water, the lower one heating the water that enters the tank. This is really hot water in a hurry because there's no waiting for an entire tank of water to be heated from the bottom of the tank.

Now, let's look at a practical benefit of Flameless Electric water heating: the economy of installation. Since they need no venting they don't have to be installed near a chimney. You can place a Flameless water heater closest to the point of most frequent use. So there's no need for long pipe runs, which cost money to install and which waste money by lowering the temperature of the hot water inside. Flameless water heaters are simple to install and do not need frequent adjusting, cleaning or replacement of parts. They are completely automatic... utterly dependable.

Because Electric water heaters are Flameless there's no way in which fumes or soot can be made. That's why a Flameless water heater can be placed anywhere—under a counter, in an attic or even in an air-tight closet. There are no hot spots on the outside, no valves or controls for a child's inquisitive fingers, nothing to go out—nothing to worry over.

There's one other important thing you ought to know—with a Flameless Electric Water heater you get a special low electric water heating rate!

DOROTHY DIX

Widower on Run

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Is there an age limit to romance? Until my wife died, I was just one of those colorless little guys you see riding to work in the morning and back at night, holding down a no-hum job, neither getting nor expecting anything more out of life.

All of a sudden I have become an elderly widower and find myself at bay with the girls in full chase. Two are closing in and this has got me scared. In a moment of weakness I may make the mistake of my life, so for God's sake, lend a helping hand!

The woman to whom I am most attracted is 20 years younger than I, has two sons, and is divorcing her husband because she says I am the man for her. She lives 1,600 miles from here but keeps in touch with me every day by phone and airmail.

The other woman is an older widow. She says I would be dependent upon indifferent restaurant food, if she didn't see to it that I had good, nourishing home-cooked meals. What shall I do?

Dear Nervous: Change direction and zigzag fast. Neither girl is the wife for you. The younger has three counts against her: a pending divorce in which you could be named as correspondent; two children by another man, and her youth.

The widow overplays her hand, prematurely qualifying as a cook rather than wife. Keep on running until you catch up with a woman who qualifies as a companion too. Like attracts like. Be interesting yourself; cultivate a hobby. Do creative work, read, study, excel in some one thing. In this way you will meet the right woman—one who really shares your interests.

Dear Helen: Could you tell me how to cure a bad temper? I yell. It upsets the family as well as me. I try my best to overcome this weekend to board a plane for Washington.

Mrs. Caylor Cox of Hot Springs is visiting Lullie Holloman and the Martin Pool family.

Mrs. Roland Pearson returned from Little Rock Thursday after being with Mr. Pearson who is a hospital patient there.

Following mid term exams, students at Ourchita Baptist College arrived home this weekend for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Moore Ellington have been visiting the Manuel Hammes.

Mrs. Jerry Wilson, nee Emily Naron, will receive her BSE degree at mid-term commencement at the U of A. The Wilsons live in Conway.

this failing and for one day succeeded.

The rest of the family thought me sick because I agreed with everything they said. That made me mad and there I was yelling again. I need cooperation but don't know how to get it. I tried talking the problem over with my mother but we wound up yelling, good and bad side to our nature.

I am a 15 year old girl—Temper. Dear Temper: We all have a good and bad side to our nature. It is a question of which we let get the upper hand. You evidently lack the will to discipline the bad.

Try the 24-hour plan. Tell yourself each morning that for one whole day you will not lose your temper no matter what others do or say. When you feel the impulse to yell, leave the room and walk or work the mad off.

You fell by the wayside that first try but it was a start. Try it tomorrow and tomorrow until you completely overcome the temper. Water drop by drop will wear a stone away.

Dear Helen: What gets into people? For four happy years the best friends my husband and I had were our next-door neighbors. The wife and I were always exchanging recipes, having coffee breaks and enjoying one another's company. A month ago for no reason at all, she stopped speaking to me, yet her husband and mine still continue friends. Have you an answer? — Worried Lady

Dear Worried: Next time your friend's husband drops by, ask him what is wrong. Say that if you have unwittingly offended his wife, you wish to make amends because you value her friendship. Should he not know the answer, or fear to become involved, ignore the lady's sulks and continue to be your best self. Sooner or later both will realize that she, not you, is in the wrong.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine, care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Is There a Test for Love?"

Collision on 71 Fatal to One

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—One man was killed and two seriously injured in the head-on collision of two cars in south Fayetteville on U.S. Highway 71 today.

Fayetteville City Patrolman J. R. Bowers identified the victim as Rollin A. Barnes, 36, a retired farmer of West Fork. Critically injured was Claude Rutherford, also of West Fork. Seriously hurt was Roy B. Smith of Fayetteville. Both are in a

Conditioning Tests Will End for Glenn

By SAUL PETT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Like a superbly conditioned boxer closing out his training camp, John Herschel Glenn Jr. goes through his last sparring session today.

Weather permitting and all other factors being equal, the next time out—Wednesday morning—will be the real thing.

This morning the 40-year-old astronaut climbs into a simulated capsule and makes a simulated orbit around the world for the last time.

In the past three weeks, he has flown 60 theoretical flights, rehearsing every possibility that could be rehearsed, and in the process has landed in the Atlantic, Indian and Pacific Oceans. (hypothetically, that is.)

He has trained intensively but after today's simulated orbit will go into a tapering-off period, lest he leave his fight in the dressing room. Today and Tuesday mostly will be taken up with last medical checks, a last preflight briefing, running on the beach to stay in shape and, inexorably, waiting.

How does he feel? "He feels pretty confident, calm and collected," reported Dr. Robert Voas, psychologist and one of the astronaut's training officers.

"I'm sure there has been some increase in tension—you can't approach a great adventure like this without some of that. But he feels well prepared. He wants to get going."

"He continues to be fascinated by what he will see over the earth. He looks forward to this not only as a great adventure but a great voyage of discovery and he doesn't want to miss a thing about the stars or the land masses or cloud conditions or other factors that could be of value to scientific knowledge."

Bowers said the Barnes car apparently created a hill in the wrong traffic lane and collided head-on with the auto driven by Smith.

Along with intensive physical examinations in the last two days, Lt. Col. Glenn, Marine Corps will be interviewed by a psychiatrist and put through a battery of psychological tests to evaluate his emotional level before takeoff into space.

Most of the tests are simple, the kind a job applicant might have to take in the personnel office of any progressive industry.

On the last Sunday before his scheduled shot, Glenn gave little indication of tension. He attended the Riverside Presbyterian church in Cocoa Beach, prayed, joined the hymn-singing in a sturdy tenor, signed autographs for Sunday School kids and generally acted like a man who wasn't going anywhere more dangerous than a desk in a business office.

Glenn's Mode of Travel Is Expensive

By BEM PRICE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — When astronaut John Herschel Glenn Jr. takes his trip through the dark of space he will travel capsule class.

It's an expensive way to travel, though the quarters are cramped. His new space ship, built by the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. of St. Louis, cost $5 million.

Glenn is scheduled to make the trip around the world strapped to a special rubber-padded fiberglass couch especially contoured to fit his 165-pound frame.

On his journey the native of New Concord, Ohio, will scarcely have elbow room since his bell-shaped cabin is only six feet in diameter across its base and stands nine feet high.

At lift-off the whole thing will weigh 4,200 pounds. As it travels along it will jettison equipment no longer needed and when it is once more upon the earth, it will weigh 2,400 pounds.

Lt. Col. Glenn of the Marine Corps is going to be a busy man. His capsule is jammed with 164 instruments, lights and switches. He will have to keep a sharp eye on all of them, even with the aid of mirrors strapped to his wrists.

All these gadgets can be operated from the ground or manually by Glenn.

There is a 165th switch which only Glenn can operate. Until he closes that particular switch, the Atlas booster destined to lift him skyward cannot be lit. This is known to the astronauts as the "chicken switch."

Glenn will be launched into orbit with the small end of the capsule pointed forward. Once in orbit, Glenn will swing his capsule through a 10-degree arc, using 18 small jets loaded with high pressure hydrogen peroxide.

He will also swing his capsule around from time to time, while passing across the night-shaded part of the earth to take a look at the stars. The time for each of the three planned orbits of the globe will be about 90 minutes.

In brief, Glenn will spend most of his trip looking toward where he has been instead of where he is going.

Glenn will be able to see the earth and stars through a "picture window" measuring 11 inches across the base and seven inches across the top. It is 19 inches high.

He will also have a periscope with which he can sweep the horizon in a 360-degree arc and a picture will appear on his screen before his face.

Should something go wrong on the flight, a red light will appear on the instrument panel directly to his front and a buzzer will insistently claim his attention.

There are some 20 things Glenn can do to save his life at various points along his route. These life-saving devices can be activated from six of 18 ground tracking stations.

Once into orbit, Glenn is pretty safe, though his life-support system must work perfectly. The capsule has two which can provide enough oxygen for 28 hours.

When the time comes to land, Glenn will fire a package of braking rockets attached to the blunt end of the capsule. His speed will drop from 17,500 miles per hour to 250 miles per hour in less than five minutes.

After the braking rockets fire, they, too, are jettisoned. At 21,000 feet a small parachute is deployed to slow the space craft even more.

At 10,000 feet, the 63-foot diameter main chute opens automatically (there are two in case one rips). If it doesn't work automatically Glenn will pop it out with a hand switch.

Upon touchdown a small radio begins sending out a signal for the recovery ships to home upon.

There is a small auxiliary unit in the cabin which Glenn can use in event the automatic device fails.

If the capsule should spring a leak from the landing impact, Glenn can escape into the sea through a hatch in the neck of the craft.

Chapter XXV

Adam had got quite thin with success. The photograph he'd taken for a book jacket showed a bony profile, one soulful eye, and a strand of hair falling romantically over his forehead.

"And how's the work going?" Dennis asked him.

"Oh, it's the same old thing. Sales, sales, sales." Adam sighed; he didn't seem happy. He had been involved in a mild scandal with the dove-count the week before. His tailies had shot up remarkably, and the doves had taken to fluttering about him instead of Santa Eulalia. Then the truth came out; Adam had been luring the doves from the statue with pocketsful of peanuts. Simon had been very upset, but I understood the whole thing had been patched up by now.

"Mirimar seems to be attracting artists these days," Adam said gloomily. "A couple checked into my pension last night. A writer and a sculptor. I don't mind the culprit, but I'd think the writer would be fair enough to find someplace else. This is my area."

"Poachers, eh?" Dennis said, and gave me a quick wink. "What sort of chaps are they?"

"Oh, they're all right, as far as that goes. Sociable enough. They invited me to join a crap game last night."

"Decent of them, eh?" Dennis said.

Commodore Shapely came by and patted him on the shoulder. "Good to see you, Francois. Work coming along all right?"

"Yes, Top-hole."

"Good." The Commodore looked keenly at the mountains. "Might be pressure building up. Nasty business. Like the Schuyler gadabout. Remember?"

"Dreadful thing," Dennis said. Enrique came from inside the bar to tell me I was wanted on the phone. It was Pye Littlejohn.

"The operator said I might find you at the Central. Good! How's everything out there?"

"Just fine. Your boys are here. Fitting in beautifully."

"Great! The bulldozer and truck will be in Mirimar tomorrow night. Work can start the next morning."

"Are you coming out?" I asked Littlejohn.

"No," he replied. "I have to stay in the background. This thing's got to look innocent." He laughed. "All done by little wheels, no big wheels in sight."
